FILE:
Synopsis:

File consists mainly of information from the period 1949-1961, indicating Lesnick has been active in politics for most of his adult life. During the fifties he was a prominent leader of Juventud Ortodoxa, which was considered to have strong leftist leanings. He engaged in propaganda efforts to large extent with this group and was vocally anti-Batista. By 1959 he was involved with SFNE, a leftist-oriented group which originally backed the Castro-Urrutia government. In 1961, however, he left for the United States and was kept in detention for some weeks because of suspected
